Message from the President

Ashlen Thomason, PhD, CCC-SLP

Looking for a way to invigorate your love for our field, sharpen your clinical skill set, and grow in your understanding of how to best help your clients? Join the circus!

I want to formally invite you to come “Under the Big Top” for the 2018 ArkSHA Annual Convention.

Regardless of the setting in which you work and your patient population, there is something of value to you with the variety of incredible presentations this year. Melanie Meeker and Jennifer Fisher have put together a fantastic lineup of speakers from around the nation and right here in Arkansas to bring excellent evidence-based practice information for speech-language pathology and audiology. We are thrilled that the convention is returning to Little Rock but in a fresh venue: the newly-renovated Robinson Center. Don't forget to become an ArkSHA member (if you aren't already) and register early to get the best price. I hope to see you there!

You may donate to the Betty Bass Scholarship when registering for the Convention, or online at www.arksha.org/scholarship

Message from the VP of Continuing Education

Melanie Meeker, MCD, CCC-SLP

Ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls – step right up to see everything available this October at ArkSHA Under the Big Top. I am pleased to host this year's convention in Little Rock at the DoubleTree Hotel and Robinson Conference Center. Whether your circus is in a hospital, skilled nursing facility, school or private practice, I hope you are able to find topics on the program that are interesting, challenging, and equipping as you aim to provide the best of services to those on your caseload.

I am very excited about this year's slate of speakers which features a great blend of local talent and nationally-known experts in their fields. Based on your feedback last year, we are offering additional sessions on fluency, AAC, and practice with autism spectrum disorders. For attendees who work primarily with adults, you'll see sessions on dysphagia, voice evaluation and treatment, and neurocognitive impairment. All of us can benefit from the insights on ethical practice that will be presented by newly-minted ASHA Fellow Dr. Lissa Power-deFur.

If you have found yourself asking, “What does ArkSHA do for me?” or “What are the benefits of ArkSHA membership?” please be sure to attend Wednesday night's Keynote Address. Former ArkSHA Ringmasters Dr. Jeff Adams and Melodee Owens along with Cheri Stevenson and Aletha Cook will bring you the latest breaking news on Medicare and Medicaid updates in the state. ArkSHA has been very busy working on behalf of you and your clients. We'll pop the corn if you'll come hear all about it.

Convention attendees will be able to earn a total of 14 hours in ASHA CEs. As in previous years, registration materials will be available at check in and speaker handouts will be available for purchase or on the website for printing ahead of time. Please follow ArkSHA's Facebook page for regular updates and sneak peeks into the convention agenda.

I look forward to seeing you Under the Big Top!

Featured Convention Speakers

Lissa Power-deFur, PhD, CCC-SLP, is Professor of Communication Sciences and Disorders at Longwood University in Virginia, where she has taught the course “Ethics and Professional Issues” since the program’s inception in 2006. She has served as a member of the ASHA Board of Ethics and on the ASHA Board of Directors as Vice President of Standards and Ethics in Speech-Language Pathology (2014-16). She has been an active volunteer for the Speech-Language-Hearing Association of Virginia as well as for ASHA. She has presented on ethical decision-making nationally and through on-line professional development. She is an ASHA-Fellow.

Paula Leslie, PhD, MA (Bioethics), FRCSLT, CCC-SLP, supports clinicians from the local to international level in complex clinical decision-making, ethics and end of life decisions in vulnerable populations. Dr. Leslie is a professor at the University of Pittsburgh and director of the Clinical Doctorate in Medical Speech-Language Pathology. Dr. Leslie is a member of ASHA SIG 15 (Gerontology) Coordinating Committee, on the editorial board of ASHA SIG 13 (Swallowing and Swallowing Disorders). She is a full member of the Dysphagia Research Society (USA) and a founding member and current Scientific Chairperson of the UK Swallow Research Group.

Co-Sponsored by Arkansas Children’s Hospital

Nanette Thompson, MS, CCC-SLP, LSLS-Cert. AVT, specializes in working with deaf/hard of hearing children for over 25 years. She provides diagnostic services and weekly speech, language, and listening therapy to families, children, and adults. She provides mentoring to professionals and school districts across the US working to improve listening and spoken language outcomes for children with hearing loss. She recently founded Listening 2 Learn and works closely with University of Colorado Hospital and the Rocky Mountain Ear Center.

Christopher R. Bugaj, MA, CCC-SLP, is a founding member of the Assistive Technology Team for Loudoun County Public Schools. Chris hosts The A.T.TIPSCAST (www.attipscast.com), a multi-award winning podcast featuring strategies to design educational experiences and co-hosts the Talking With Tech (www.talkingwithtech.net) podcast featuring interviews and conversations about augmentative and alternative communication. Chris has presented over 250 live or digital sessions at local, regional, state, national and international events, including TEDx, all of which are listed at <http://bit.ly/bugajpresentations>.

Jill Fitzpatrick, MA, CCC-SLP, specializes in voice, swallowing, head and neck cancer, and airway disorders at Arkansas Otolaryngology Center in Little Rock, Arkansas. Prior to joining AOC in 2007, Jill worked at Baptist Health Rehabilitation Institute in Little Rock, Arkansas, for 14 years. Jill is an adjunct clinical instructor at the University of Central Arkansas and teaches the voice disorders class. She has been a clinical supervisor to students from universities all across Arkansas since 1994.

Adrian Williamson, III, MD, is an otolaryngologist with Arkansas Otolaryngology Center in Little Rock, Arkansas. He received his medical degree from Tulane University School of Medicine in 1985. He completed his Otolaryngology- Head and Neck Surgery residency at Tulane in New Orleans, Louisiana, in 1991. Dr. Williamson is a general ENT whose areas of interest include voice disorders and pediatrics. Dr. Williamson runs a specialty voice, swallowing and airway clinic every Thursday in conjunction with Jill Fitzpatrick

Pamela Wiley, PhD, is the President of the Los Angeles Speech and Language Therapy Center, Inc. established in 1979. Dr. Wiley and her culturally and linguistically diverse staff of speech-language pathologists and early interventionists provide innovative programs and treatment to families. As a result, Dr. Wiley has established long term relationships with her children and families. In 2017, she focused her attention on her young adults with autism and safety with law enforcement. She recently partnered with Lt. Stan Campbell to offer weekend long trainings for males 18 yrs. and older. Her overall objective is to promote trust, greater awareness and positive dialogue to ensure the safety of all individuals with autism.

Stan Campbell is the COO of CCW Safe, a national legal defense membership organization for licensed concealed weapon carriers. Stan is known for his teaching experience as a law enforcement instructor and has personally trained over 4,000 uniformed officers and criminal justice professionals across the nation in the proper use of force, defensive tactics and how to deescalate potentially violent encounters. Stan recently introduced D.O.P.E. (Deescalating Office Patrol Encounters) a comprehensive training and awareness program sharing industry tips and personal training advice to citizens and police officers simultaneously.

Valarie Fleming, PhD, CCC-SLP, is Chair and Associate Professor in the Dept. of Communication Disorders at Texas State University. She is the Director and Principal Investigator of the Cognitive-Communication Laboratory and she teaches courses in adult neurogenetics and swallowing disorders. As a certified SLP, she has rehabilitative experience with adolescents and adults in acute care, skilled nursing facilities, and outpatient settings. Her research focuses on cognitive and linguistic aging, and mild cognitive impairment/Alzheimer’s disease.

PLEASE NOTE:

ArkSHA will NOT be preapproving sessions with AAA. If you would like AAA credit, please contact the ArkSHA office at 501-244-0621 ASAP on how to proceed.

CALL FOR 2018 BETTY BASS STUDENT SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS

As the 2018-2019 academic year approaches, one of the greatest stressors for many students enrolled in Communication Sciences and Disorders graduate programs is figuring out how to pay for their education. You don't have to look far to find headlines about how the cost of higher education has significantly surpassed that of inflation over the past two decades.

For one ArkSHA graduate student member, some of the rising costs will be offset by receiving the 2018 Betty Bass Student Scholarship. To be considered for this award, the applicant must be enrolled in a Communication Sciences and Disorders graduate program in Arkansas, and be an Arkansas resident. Additional and more specific guidelines can be obtained from the ArkSHA website: www.arksha.org

The deadline for the receipt of application materials is October 1, 2018.

For more information, please contact ArkSHA at (501) 244-0621 or arksha@arksha.org

Craig Coleman, MA, CCC-SLP, BCS-F, is an assistant professor at Marshall University and Chair of Graduate Admissions in the Department of Communication Disorders. Craig is a Board-Certified Specialist in Fluency Disorders. Prior to joining the Marshall faculty, Craig spent over twelve years serving as Clinical Coordinator and Co-Director of the Stuttering Center at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh. Craig is currently serving as Coordinator of ASHA Special Interest Group-4 (Fluency and Fluency Disorders). Craig is a co-founder of MC Speech Books, where he has co-authored three children's books on stuttering. Craig collaborated on the child versions of the Overall Assessment of the Child's Experience of Stuttering (OASES), which assesses the affective and cognitive components of stuttering.

Mary Weidner, PhD, CCC-SLP, is an assistant professor in the Department of Communication Disorders. Dr. Weidner's area of research focuses on measuring and changing children's attitudes toward peers with communication disorders. She developed the Attitude Change and Tolerance program (InterACT), an educational program that teaches children about awareness and acceptance of human differences. She teaches courses in speech, language, research, and counseling at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Dr. Weidner co-directs Stuttering U., a summer camp for children who stutter and their families. Prior to coming to Marshall, she worked clinically at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh.
